Attachment & Trauma Sensitive School Silver Award

We are delighted to share that Kings Meadow has now been awarded the Silver Attachment & Trauma Sensitive School Award, recognising our continued commitment to supporting every child's emotional wellbeing.

Over the past year, we have built on the strong foundations established through our Bronze Award, further deepening our understanding of attachment and trauma-informed practice. This has included ongoing staff training, refinement of our approaches to teaching and behaviour, and continued development of supportive spaces across school to help children regulate, feel safe and thrive.

Our journey towards Silver has strengthened our whole-school provision, ensuring that all children, particularly those who may be more vulnerable, are supported with care, consistency and compassion.

We recently met again with Dr. Jenny Nock (Educational Psychologist and founder of the award), She was incredibly impressed with the progress we have made, commenting positively on our nurturing ethos, inclusive practice and the calm, supportive environment we have created.

As part of our award journey, we were also approached by Sefton Local Authority who worked with us to commission a short film which shares the strength of our practice and environment. We will release this through our Instagram account kingsmeadow_primary in the coming weeks so please take a look at the provision and approached that we have developed.

Thank you to our staff, pupils and families for your continuing support in this important work. We are very proud of this achievement and remain committed to developing our practice even further. The Gold Award now beckons!
